NET TENDER NUMBER THREE

A Fine Launching In the Presence Of Snow Shipyards' New Officials

Threatening weather was offered for yesterday's launching at the Snow Shipyards but the westerly direction of the wind held true to promise and the sun poked through the clouds when it came time to turn the big Navy net tender Hoptree over to its native element.

When it seemed that the tide could rise no higher the workmen ceased their efforts beneath the hull and Ernest Gamage, foreman, shouted for the sponsor to be ready with the champagne bottle.

And Ensign Anne P. Jameson, U.S.N.R., WAVE from the office of the Supervisor of Shipbuilding at Bath was ready. She fetched the beribboned bottle a swat against the Hoptree's bow and the contents and net tender flew at the same moment.

The ship moved gracefully down the ways, and settled on an even keel in the waters of the harbor awaiting the moment when the tug would tow her back to one of the Snow docks.

Heading the launching party was Capt. R. S. Hitchcock, U.S.N., Supervisor of Shipbuilding for the Navy and Mrs. Hitchcock. Also on the launching platform were Lt. E. R. Childs, Mrs. Walter Rogers, Mrs. Carlos Dean, J. E. Malmberg, Mrs. Harold Bates and Mrs. Evelyn

TO MEET QUOTA OF $25,000

Knox County's War Fund Drive Starts Oct. 28 —What the Money Will Do

Knox County's great War Fund Drive, a part of the huge national campaign, is fast taking form with an organization that spells success in this most important and most appealing of all campaigns. The goal is $25,000 for the county.

This great drive will open in most towns in the county Oct. 28 when house to house canvassing will begin, and the end is expected on or before Nov. 15. A few towns are so well organized already that they may start their campaigns before the 28th, which is all right with the committee.

John M. Pomeroy is serving as head of the county organization. The northern section will be under the direction of Percy Keller of Camden; the western sector will be operated by Raymond E. Thurston of Union, and the southern area will be under the joint command of Edward Dorman and Mrs. Harold F. Dana. The man or woman to lead the Rockland campaigners has not as yet been decided upon but the workers' organization is being whipped into shape.

This one campaign will take care of all the major war philanthropies except the Red Cross. It covers three fronts—the allied front, the military front and the home front. This means all the countries fighting the Axis or already overrun by the barbarian hordes. All these countries look to us for help and this campaign is America's answer.

The military front is taken care of by the splendid U.S.O. and the United Seamen's Service. The home front meets the home demands co-

The Black Cat

(By The Roaming Reporter)

E. H. Crie furnishes me with a simple solution of what the Three Crows were saying. It is: "We don't complain without cause."

Fred Burnham of 43 Beechwood street, Thomaston, recalls a four-line jingle he heard as a child. It runs—

Said one Old Crow unto its mate, "What shall we do for food to eat?" Said the other Old Crow, "Don't you know, That John Bird Company is the place to go."

When I lamented the other day because I could find no word to rhyme with scrod I betrayed my utter lack of poetic knowledge. Pitying my ignorance Mrs. W. L. Ames of Vinalhaven offers the following, adding "now you try it."

You say you'd write a poem If you'd a rhyming word for scrod, Why man use your brain, How about cod.

And while we're on the subject Get out your fishing rod And you will plainly see That also rhymes with scrod.

And when you think them over You'll not find it so very odd That there should be so many words That just naturally rhyme with scrod.

L. A. Page of Appleton attracted considerable attention on Main street Tuesday carrying a cub bear which he had shot in Brownville. Local camera artists took a few shots at Mr. Page.

Mrs. Leroy Field of McCloud street has about reached the conclusion that she must muzzle her white bantam rooster. The peppy little chap scraps vigorously with her cats every time meat or fish is put out for them.

The annual wonder of Oct. 12 is why Columbus, having discovered America, made the mistake of going back home—Ed. Pointer in the Globe.

But isn't Christopher supposed to be still with us? Havana papers please copy.

We always thought that our classified advertising was far reaching. Read what Editor Fred C. Green of the Watertown (Mass.) Sun says:

The Rockland, Me., Courier-Gazette, which covers a wide range of rural towns and island communities, has carried some mighty interesting items in its classified advertisements. We recall one during the depth of the depression which embodied an offer to trade a dress suit for a barrel of flour. But tops in something or other is the notice that has been running several weeks and which offers a reward for two turtles missing from Tenant's Harbor. Unless they hitch-hiked, they could hardly have gotten as far as these parts but they will be recognized from the fact that one is spotted and the other has red streaks painted lengthwise of its shell. Also, each wears a small ring in its carapace (shell, again, to you). Probably an elopement.

Camden's done something: It has established the habit at a launching of "kissing the sponsor." Bet there's been a lot of competition for the courtesy!—Lewiston Journal.

More ships, more sponsors, more kisses.

Not to be outdone by the friend who presented The Black Cat with a box of ripe strawberries last week, Mrs. George A. Carter of Lake avenue yesterday brought in a box of ripe raspberries, accompanied by twigs which bore raspberry blossoms and ripe and green berries: 'Nother shortcake; more thanks.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

If I had my life to live again I would have made a rule to read some poetry and listen to some music at least once a week. The loss of these tastes is a loss of happiness.—Charles Darwin.

FOR DAD

When I was home, Dad, now that I think about it, We never, you and I, said what we thought, Men folks, it seems, are wont to hide their feelings— To show emotion's not a strong man's lot; But out here with the ocean deep beneath me, With only God and His million stars above, Such inhibitions seem senseless trifles, Out here a man feels free to speak his love. And so it is, Dad, out of this far vastness I send this message to you there back home, All the thousand things you've thought and felt about me Are etched upon my mind as in some tome; And now somehow I feel all free to speak them, Now that we're all these worlds and seas apart, Though by miles you're farther off than ever, You've never been so close to your son's heart. Arch Ward in "In the Wake of the News."—C.D.T.

Subscriptions $3.00 per year, payable in advance; single copies four cents.

Advertising rates based upon circulation and very reasonable. The Rockland Gazette was established in 1846. In 1874 the Courier was established and consolidated with the Gazette in 1882. The Free Press was established in 1865 and in 1881 changed its name to the Tribune. These papers consolidated March 14, 1897.

[EDITORIAL]

ACUTE PAPER SHORTAGE
One year ago, The Courier-Gazette sensing that there would be an acute paper shortage, discontinued one of its tri-weekly editions—very regrettably—but believes it has partly recompensed its subscribers by making each of its two issues much better than each of the previous three could have been. The effect of the shortage upon the Boston newspapers is little short of startling, for most of them on most of the days carry only two more pages than are to be found in every issue of The Courier-Gazette, and some are abbreviating the magazine sections.

The Press Herald Wednesday said: Reports from Washington indicate that the Country will have to get along with 52 percent less paper, both for newspapers and other purposes, than it has this year. The reason, of course, is that labor for pulpwood cutting in both the United States and Canada is lacking. There is no shortage of standing timber. Several proposals have been made for relief of this shortage. One is to find somehow 38,000 additional woodcutters. Another is to bring back on convey ships returning from Russia enough pulpwood to meet part of the demands from our mills. A third is to amend the tariff laws to permit importation of light-weight newsprint. A fourth is to set prisoners of war at woodcutting, subject, of course, to their willingness to work, and to the manifold difficulties of preventing escape.

Something has to be done. It would be tragic if newspapers, upon which the entire country increasingly depends, should have their usefulness impaired by an even greater paper shortage. Worth noting is one other way of handling the situation. Britain has just announced that it will draft men to work in the coal mines, calling them up just as it would for service in the armed forces. Here in this country we have dodged the manpower question. A national service law would solve it. We hesitate daily, postpone decision. It is getting time to do something drastic if necessary to keep the country and the war effort running. The developing paper shortage is a good illustration of the difficulties into which we are falling. What Britain is doing about coal we must at least consider doing about paper.

A GOOD HUNTING SEASON

The hunting season is on full swing, so far as game birds are concerned, but with a sadly reduced army of nimrods left to enjoy it. The foliage is disappearing so rapidly that the birds are no longer able to secrete themselves from vision of the keen-eyed hunters and waterfowl have been driven seaward by the formation of shell ice on the lakes and streams. Earl Doucette, the vigilant publicity man of the Maine Development Commission, who issues at regular intervals a woody department known as "Maine Outdoor News," thus summarizes the game situation:

The woodcock season, which runs through Oct. 24, promises to be a good one, with best gunning the last week of the season. The State is virtually overrun with gray squirrels, and "fried squirrel" is a welcome relief from the overdone of bologna most of us have endured. Deer hunting prospects have never been so bright, and the deer were never in finer condition. The season in Knox, Lincoln and Waldo Counties opens Nov. 1st. "With the meat shortage still upon us little venison will be wasted this year."

BANISHED FROM COUNTRY

A Connecticut Federal judge, dealing with the case of a young man who had pleaded guilty to "failing to report for induction," suspended sentence on condition that the defendant shall quit the United States. On the advice of his lawyer the man turned down the proposal, and asked for immediate imposition of sentence. The Federal judge continued the case for 30 days in order that the accused might have opportunity to think it over. Every week there is circularized a list of New England draftees who failed to report. We wonder what was done in their cases.

10 WAYS TO CHEAT DIMOUT DEATH!

An increasingly grave problem to safety and police officials are dim-out casualties and injuries, especially among pedestrians. But, according to John J. Winchester, supervisor of automotive vehicles for Esso Markets, in charge of one of the nation's largest motor fleets, dim-out walking and driving can be as safe as normal driving if pedestrians and drivers will learn a few new additions to the old safety rules. These rules, compiled with the assistance of the medical department of Esso Markets, make allowances for diminished visual abilities of both motorists and pedestrians in a dim-out. Thus, pedestrians are urged to wear something white, motorists to cut speeds sharply.

Night vision can be assisted with the simple precautions listed above, according to experts. It will be aided materially by making certain that the diet includes liberal portions of foods producing Vitamin A. Excellent sources of this vitamin are apricots, broccoli, butter, carrots, cod liver oil, collards, cheese, fish roe, halibut liver oil, kale, liver, peppers, spinach, yellow squash, sweet potatoes and turnip greens. There are, of course, many other good sources, such as whole milk, prunes, soy beans, etc.

Drivers, too, will be materially aided, according to experts, if the eyes are swung from right to left or, when a dangerous object appears, if eyes are focussed a little left of center or right of center of the object or pedestrian.

In memory of Samuel E. Rich who passed away Oct. 16, 1938.
Five long years ago you left me. How oft I miss your loving face. But you left me to remember. None on earth can take your place. A happy home we once enjoyed. How sweet the memory still. But death has left a loneliness. The world can never fill.
Not forgotten by his wife, Mrs. Edgartown, Mass.

IN MEMORIAM
In memory of Margaret Mary Pratt. You cannot say, you must not say. That she is dead. She is just away. With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand. She has wandered into an unknown land. And left us dreaming how very fair it needs must be since she lingers there. So think of her faring on, as dear. In the love of There as the love of Here. Think of her still as the same, and say. She is not dead, she is just away. Mr. and Mrs. William E. Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Pratt.

Guest Speaker Hempstead Tells Of Churches In Captivity

"The Church in Captivity" was the subject of Rev. A. G. Hempstead's address before the Rockland Lions Club and in this course of it the Methodist pastor paid tribute to the consistent courage shown by the churches in Norway, The Netherlands and Germany.
"The church has stood up where individuals have failed," said the speaker, "and the church alone has stood across the path of Hitler's aggression."

In Norway the Lutheran Church went into revolt against subjugation, but the other people knuckled down pretty well. Quisling remarked that the Church was the hardest problem with which he had to deal. He started to suppress it with all his power, but was obliged to retract.

The speaker told of the strong stand adopted in The Netherlands against the anti-Jewish uprising. Gentiles donned the Star of David in order to show their sympathy with the Jewish people. The Church there has held up its head, and never bowed to oppression.

In Germany 86 percent of the clergy has been drafted into the war, and everything possible has been done to rid the country of religion. German soldiers are forbidden to have religious literature in their possession. Only by the defeat of Hitler can the Church come back into its own.

The club voted to buy a remembrance for Dr. Gilmore W. Soule and Christmas boxes for the five Lions who will be serving by that time. King Lion Dandereau was authorized to arrange for the gifts.

The guest speaker was introduced by Past King Lion Ralph P. Conant, who hinted strongly that Mr. Hempstead was in a receptive mood for chess or checker challenges.

The Club was favored by the presence of Rev. William J. Hutchison of the Vinalhaven Club.

S. N. Broadbent and son Irvin have returned to Florida after spending the Summer at their cottage.

John Kelley of Augusta has been supplying the pulpit in the Advent Church in the absence of the pastor Rev. Harry Daniels.

Mr. and Mrs. Perley Simmons, Mrs. John Thompson and Gordon Thompson called Sunday on Herman Simmons.

Clifton Morse is visiting relatives in Montville.

Mrs. Phyllis Littlehale is confined to her home by illness.

Friends and relatives gathered Monday at the home of Ulysses G. Davis to tender a surprise party in honor of his 77th birthday. He received several fine gifts, three birthday cakes and several greeting cards. A repast was served. Those present were Mrs. Jennie Hupper, Mrs. Clara Morse, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley of Mrs. Forrest Davis, Miss Catherine Martinsville, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Davis.

Salaries Raised

City Officials Benefit, But Still Receive Less Than Many Laborers

Several city officials and five clerks were granted increases in a salary resolve, passed at special meeting of the council Monday night. The resolve, supplementary to one passed in November, 1942, covers the period from Aug. 1, 1943 to the first Monday in Jan., 1944. The increases go to persons not covered in a previously passed resolve.

CHAPTER XIII

No one answered her. The thing was plain enough without words. The island on which they stood was perhaps a quarter mile long, 200 yards wide. This upper part of it was sleek naked rock, black with wet little streams of rain water running down its slopes to cascade over the break of the cliffs on every side. There was never a tree in sight, and scarce a bush worth the name. Angus turned to Robin with gray, tired eyes. She asked:

"Where are we? Do you know?" Angus shook his head. No one spoke. Robin tried to speak, but her lips were stiff with cold. A gust of sleet pelled them; and Angus drew Robin beside him, sheltering her as well as he could. "We'll have to get a fire going," he said. "Have to find some cover against the rain."

Pat spoke. "Sorr, there's a place I marked back there where we came up. Come and see. 'Tis not much; but it will be some better than nothing at all."

"We'll have a look," Angus assented. They turned back toward the cleft, and as they did so, Romeo and Jenkins came up into view. Mr. Jenkins wore now an oldskin coat he had not worn before. They approached him, and Romeo drew warily aside as though fearful of some violence. Robin saw a long open cut on cheek and jaw in front of Romeo's ear, and all his countenance was battered and swollen. She remembered how when he threw her aside in the forecastle last night she struck at him with the knife like a club.

Angus asked a question. "Where did you get the coat, Jenkins?" "I had it on last night in the cabin to keep warm. I got out of it when it looked as if I'd have to swim ashore. It floated up on the beach." He nodded toward Romeo. "I sent him down to get it, this morning."

"Miss Dale needs it more than you do."

Robin started to deny this; but before she could speak, Jenkins laughed grimly. "Her? I wouldn't give it to her to save her life. If she hadn't been along, Romeo would have tended to business, and we'd be all right now. Let her freeze."

When he saw violence in McPhail's eyes he took a step or two backward and dropped his hand into his pocket and said: "Easy, McPhail. I've still got my gun. Come on, let's get out of here."

Angus hesitated. "We can't," he said. "We're on an island. Water all around us." Rain and sleet lashed at them.

"An island? You're crazy," Angus said. "You're yourself." He indicated the dome above where they stood. Jenkins and Romeo went that way, and Pat led Angus and Robin down to the break of the cliff. A dozen feet below them, some harder strata had resisted the weather, and a ledge two feet thick projected like a shelf. The outer part of it had broken off, a great slab a dozen feet across; and this stood on edge like a wall across the seaward face of the cave-like space under the overhang. The ledge above was a shelter against rain, the slab served as windbreak. The place thus partially protected was some four feet wide, perhaps four feet high, and about six feet long. It was open at both ends, and there was an opening a few inches wide between the slab like a wall and the ledge like a roof.

Nevertheless, here was shelter. Angus and Pat began to chink that opening at the top, to reduce to a minimum the amount of rain and sleet that might come in; and then Mr. Jenkins and Romeo returned. "We're in a tough spot, McPhail," said Jenkins, soberly.

Angus nodded. "First thing is to look around," he suggested. "See what we've got to get on with. Look for firewood. We can all meet here later, start a fire." Jenkins moved away in a silent assent, and Romeo after a moment's indecision, as though choosing the lesser of two evils, followed him. Pat watched them go; and he said to Angus with a relish:

"Romeo'll never watch another girl with the handsome face of him; and he'll not laugh again at this scar of mine." He stared after the two departing. "Sorr, they sing small now. We can handle them, you and me."

"What cut his face so?" Pat's glance touched Robin. She remembered that he had been close beside her in the forecastle last night, must have seen the knife in her hand; but he said evasively: "Like as not he butted the glass out of the pilothouse or what not. He had it coming to him, anyway, bad cess to him! Aye, then, two bold men will sing small now; or you and me we'll break the both of them."

Angus did not press the point. Jenkins and Romeo had gone toward the more distant end of the island. "You and I will search this end, Pat," McPhail decided. "Miss Dale, you stay here where there's some shelter."

"I'll come and help," she protested. He said quietly: "Please don't argue. You'll help most by doing what you're told. Take care of yourself. That will make it easier for us to take care of you. Stay here and keep as warm and dry as you can."

She felt like a child rebuked. "I'm sorry," she said. "I've certainly ruined things for all of you, haven't I?"

He spoke in a still impatience, "Please doesn't matter now. We'll manage. You stay here."

So she was alone for an hour or more in the scant shelter afforded by these two great slabs. Wind curled in around the slab that was like a wall; so she began to pile some rocks at one end, and thus engaged, she remembered for the first time that cake of chocolate inside her flannel shirt. During the night it had slipped around to lie against her side, and still in foil and wrapping except for the end she had opened, it was bent and crushed and somewhat softened by the heat from her body. Yet it was food! Sight of it made her suddenly desperately hungry. She wanted to eat it, to eat it all; but there might be no other food on the island, Angus must have some of this.

She put it in a dry crevice, specially contrived, in the barrier she was building across the open end of the shelter; and she piled rocks over it and around it to keep it safe for him.

Angus and Jenkins and Romeo returning, met just above the shelter, and she heard their voices and looked up and saw them there. Mr. Jenkins brought a broken orange crate, and Romeo a few dead twigs open cut on cheek and jaw in front of Romeo's ear, and all his countenance was battered and swollen. She remembered how when he threw her aside in the forecastle last night she struck at him with the knife like a club.

He had it coming to him, anyway, bad cess to him! Aye, then, two bold men will sing small now; or you and me we'll break the both of them."

But Pat Donohoe suddenly squatted on his hunkers, and he made a doleful, keening sound. Angus asked quickly: "What's wrong, Pat?" Pat wagged his head. "Sorr, there'll be trouble to signal the folk ashore there, even when it clears." "We'll light a fire."

"With never a dry match among the lot of us? Nor a dry rag on any one of us? Nor a dry bit of wood ever to be found?"

"We'll manage somehow."

Pat stared at the rock between his feet. "Sorr, did ever ye hear of the Queen of Swansea?"

"No."

"Many's the time I've heard the old folks tell that tale." Pat's low tones were remote and strange, like the murmurs of a sleeper. "She went ashore in a snowstorm, one December day seventy years ago, on Gull Island. Two women and nine men got off her, so they did. They got to the island before she sank. They had a bit of sail for shelter, but no food, no water, no wood."

Robin was trembling with a sudden terror. She cried defensively: "We've food! I have a pound of cooking chocolate. And we've water! There's rain water in every hole in the rocks. And we've shelter."

Angus looked at her sharply, but Pat did not lift his head. His voice droned on. "Sure, sorr, they could see a village eight miles away, the same as us. They built fires to signal, too, at night; but the folk ashore went to bed at dark, belike; and wood was scarce and the fires were small and no one ever saw it."

It was a March day when a fisherman found them, in a heap under the poor bit of sail.

"Dead?" Robin whispered. She cried desperately: "But Angus, we can signal them somehow. We can put up a flag!"

Pat droned mournfully: "With never a flag, nor a flagpole! How will we be doing that, ma'am?"

Robin forced herself to laugh at him. "Pat, Pat, you'll not give up so easily! Why, we can swim ashore if we must! I could almost do it myself."

"And the water like ice, and the tide current like a river running?" Angus chuckled. "Come out of your trance, Pat! Here's what we can do. We'll build a monument for them to see. A cairn. A pile of rocks. People who live beside the sea always watch the horizon. You know that, Pat." Pat's head rose as though hope revived in him; he uttered an approving grunt. "If they see something sticking up on top of the island here, they'll come to see what it is."

Pat sprang to his feet, his hopeless mood gone as quickly as it had come. "Right for you, sorr!" he cried. "We'll do that!" He turned sharply as though to begin; but Angus said:

"Wait, Pat. Miss Dale, you say you have a cake of chocolate?"

She nodded; and then she was suddenly cold, remembering. She looked toward the cleft below them. Mr. Jenkins and Romeo were not in sight. They must be down in the shelter under that overhanging slab, and the chocolate was there. She caught Angus miserably by the arm.

"Yes, but it's down there."

She saw his lips tighten. Then he turned that way and they followed him. They came to the break of the ledge and looked down into the shelter a dozen feet below them. Mr. Jenkins sat cross-legged in the open end of it, facing them. Romeo peered over his shoulder. Mr. Jenkins held his pistol in his hand. Angus stopped at sight of it, and the others too. Jenkins said assentingly:

"Yes, that's right. Stay where you are."

Robin felt the sudden storm in Angus, but his tones were calm enough. "Jenkins," he said, "we're all in this together. We've got to . . ."

Jenkins interrupted curtly. "Not me, McPhail. Some of us may not live till we're found. Two or three days in this rain and cold will kill anyone. There's not room for five of us here." He grinned. "There's room for Miss Dale, if she's cold. Romeo will keep her warm. But you and the Irishman will have to find yourselves another hole!"

Angus, without a word, led Robin back from the lip of the cleft. Pat followed them and they walked away together silently; but when they were at some distance Angus stopped.

"Pat, we've got to get him out of there."

"Aye, sorr!"

Robin asked hotly: "Do you think he's eaten our chocolate?"

"Was it where he would see it?" "He might not. I piled rocks over it to keep it dry."

"Can't tell about that," Angus decided. "But Pat, we've got to have some place to get in out of the rain, anyway. We've got to handle them. Here's our best chance." Pat listened soberly, and Angus said: "You get down to the beach, somehow, and crawl up the slope below them. Get as near them as you can. I'll be lying flat on my stomach right above where they are. When you're near enough, make some sound. Jenkins will come outside to take a shot at you; and I'll be on him in two jumps."

Pat looked dubious. "What about Romeo? He can throw a knife straight enough to split a stick."

Angus said briefly: "I can throw a rock as hard as he can throw a knife."

Angus hesitated, then he nodded. "Very well, Pat. Maybe I'm better than you at dodging bullets; and you're certainly better than I am in a rough and tumble. I'll draw his fire, and—you get him."

"I'll be able to help, on Romeo. Give me time to get near them. Don't make a move till I yell."

"Aye, sorr."

Angus considered for a moment. "All right," he said. "It's not very good; but I don't know anything better. Let's go."

Hattie E. Dart
Rev. A. S. Bishop, pastor of the Baptist Church, officiated at committal services held at the Newcombe Cemetery Saturday for Hattie E. Dart, 81, of Sanford, formerly of this town.

Death occurred suddenly Wednesday at the Goodall Memorial Hospital in Sanford, due to embolism. Mrs. Dart had been a patient at the hospital for about a week, following a heavy fall at her home. While she received no broken bones, this is believed to be the indirect cause of her sudden death, since she was recovering satisfactorily, until her ill turn.

Mrs. Dart will be greatly missed by friends here of whom she had many, this her native town, in which she kept in close touch. Her kindly, motherly disposition, and understanding heart endeared her to those friends here and in her own town of Sanford.

She was born in this town, daughter of William and Eliza Kirkpatrick Montgomery, one of the two children born to them. Her brother, Edgar died several years ago, and her husband, Charles A. Dart, ten years ago.

She had been a resident of Sanford for over 40 years. Mr. Dart employed for a number of years at Sanford Mills. She had been treasurer for a great many years of the William Reed Relief Corps, and in which she still was an active member.

She leaves two sons, Capt. Allen D. Dart of New Haven, who is with the First Security Command, A.U.S. and Levi Dart, Sanford jeweler, and one daughter, Mrs. Alfred K. Wilson of Alfred, five grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

Accompanying the body here for the committal services were Capt. and Mrs. Dart of New Haven, Mr. and Mrs. Dart of Sanford, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson of Alfred.

The funeral services were held Friday in Sanford. The offerings of flowers were many and beautiful.

Parent-Teacher Association

"MY" BOYS

[For The Courier-Gazette]
Each night when daylight has ended
And I'm through with the cares of the day,
My thoughts then turn to the radio
To hear what the news has to say.
And as the word of the fighting
Comes floating in over the air
I wonder, oh, so often
Where there any of "my" boys there.
Not only the ones gave life to
That prattled and played 'round my knee;
There are others I watched grow from childhood
They are very dear to me.
I have watched them grow to manhood,
I have thrilled with their laughter
And noise,
And now they're defending my freedom.
Yet to me they are my little boys.
There will be a bright tomorrow,
How happy and proud I shall be
When the war of guns is over
And "my" boys come back to me.
Each night ever I seek my pillow
I whisper a mother's prayer
That God in His infinite mercy
Will watch over "my" boys out there.
Margaret Elwell
Spruce Head.

THE VOYAGE OF LIFE

[For The Courier-Gazette]
By tender hands our boats were launched
To drift awhile
With careful art our trip was planned
With tear and smile;
And now we sail the boundless sea,
The sea of life,
Drifting around the dangerous crags
Where surf is rife
Some will steer their sturdy barks
Straight out to sea,
Nor fear to be
Where sea-birds cry and billows roll.
Through treacherous waves and briny mist
The port they see
They trust their Pilot's guiding hand,
They'll sail some day
Into the Haven of their dreams
Storms over for aye.
Mary E. L. Taylor
Rockland.

MISSING ON THE HOME FRONT

[For The Courier-Gazette]
They call me the flower lover,
And love must ever weep.
For I've just made the empty beds
Where poppies used to sleep.
— Archie Tech
Waltham, Mass.

THE OLD HOUSE

(Dedicated to the old Snow house on Water street.)
The old house stands on a quiet street
And rays of the early sunlight meet
The shadows that ancient shade trees throw
On the steps of stone and the portico.
Long years ago through the Summer's run
This mansion gleamed in the rising sun
And kindly welcomes waited there
In the lofty hall with its winding stair.
When the builders passed from cross to crown
And new homes rose in the sea-coast town,
The old house lived from the old to the new
And the street seemed strange and the neighbors few.
And now the old house lives to crown
With stately grandeur a modern town,
And the ancient shade trees point up high
And wave in the light of the starlit sky.
Maurice P. Hill

Russell Athletes

"Don't Let Bill Kid You,"
Writes Francis "The Ninth Child"

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

My secretary placed a copy of The Courier-Gazette on my desk this afternoon with the article in it in regard to my brother Bill. Needless to say I was very happy to see The Courier-Gazette and even more so to read about Bill's visit to Rockland. To return to a normal sense of values after the rather distorted picture of Washington can nowhere be more easily had than down on the rockbound coast of Maine where people never change.

I received that paper from Miss Elizabeth McCoy formerly of Thomaston, who is famous out here in the Middle West for doing "difficult" things immediately—the impossible takes a little longer." Betty is the well known boss of the transportation division at Great Lakes Naval Training Station and has pulled so many "transportation rabbits" out of the proverbial hat that those of us who have been traveling across the country for the Bureau of Yards and Docks consider her in the class with the "Great Livingston." Those of us who know her have a very great admiration for her ability in solving these problems of a lower berth when transportation is such a difficult question.

I noticed Bill, rather chestily stated, that his oldest boy would be the greatest athlete in the Russell family. That's a broad statement. Athletics is such a broad field I'd take issue with Bill on that. The question is will Bill, Jr. (Bill's oldest) ever be able to throw a baseball in a fit of pique from deep left field over Harvey Hall's barn, behind the backstop at Vinalhaven, as did my brother Charlie; be able to pitch the games my brother Joe did or even to sit out an argument on third base as long as Joe would; do a nice turn behind home plate as did his uncles Jim and Ed, or even (pardon my modesty) win three events in one day the way his uncle Frank did in track.

The best athlete the Russell family ever produced, and so far the most famous, is my youngest brother John, who has medals, cups, and trophies in abundance, now carefully guarded and kept well used by my sister Agnes at Plainville, Mass., to demonstrate his ability. John will be recalled as the anchor man on that famous Boston College relay team of 1927 which broke the world's record at the Penn Relays Carnival of that year and was also one of the few track stars in this country who was ever entered against the famous Paavo Nurmi and Willie Katonen in the mile run. John is now Civilian Engineer for the Corps of Engineers at the Hartford Airport, Hartford, Conn. At college he also enjoyed no mean reputation in the ancient art of boxing.

Quite modestly, but none the less emphatically, I would like to point out to my brother Bill, that those of us who have been recently married and quite traditionally have spent our honeymoons in Maine, expect that if, as and when our progeny arrive to take their place in the Clan Russell, they will give as good an account of themselves and be able to carry out the exploits of their fathers, uncles and grandfather in the field of sport and will be able to take Bill's youngest sons along with all comers. Incidentally, I'd back Bill's youngest boy, Charlie, against all the kids in the neighborhood including his much older and "much larger" brother, Billie.

It's interesting to note that the old Vinalhaven boys are found in some of the finest positions in the country. I met Frank Wardwell of the Stone & Webster Co. here at the Hotel Joliet, Ill., the other night, and Joseph Kenneth Black of Vinalhaven, son of the late Joe Black who operated the Booth Brothers quarry at Vinalhaven, worked with Mr. Wardwell and is now chief engineer on the Ft. Lowden dam. He is highly regarded in the engineering profession in the Middle West.

I met Douglas Littlefield, son of the late Fred Littlefield, who was postmaster at Vinalhaven when I was a kid, in the station in Detroit. Doug is a patent attorney for the United Shoe Machinery Co. and makes his home in Arlington, Mass.

I met an oldtimer, Jimmie Coats, who worked for Bill on the Cathedral in Washington, and Jimmie remarked that having once worked in Vinalhaven he always wanted to return there, and that his feeling was true with all the other men he met who had ever worked at Vinalhaven. I think he was the stone mason Bill referred to who died after setting the cross on the Cathedral.

Speaking of Cathedrals, for the first time, last Summer my wife and I saw the famous granite columns which my grandfather and father turned out for the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York. You had a write-up about the famous lathe in The Courier-Gazette last Fall when I made a trip to Maine for the Navy relative to the new Naval Air Station at Ash Point. Were it not for a fractured foot and being compelled to get around on crutches over the icy streets of Rockland I would have invaded your sanctum sanctorum at The Courier-Gazette office.

While I liked the poem Bill read at the Lions Club on Vinalhaven, I always felt Longfellow couldn't be improved on when he wrote (and it seems as if he wrote of Vinalhaven),

"Often I think of the beautiful town that is seated by the sea."
Often in thoughts go up and down the well known streets of that dear old town, and my youth comes back to me.

To some who have only had a chance to say "Ave atque vale" to the beautiful waters of Penobscot Bay and to gaze longingly across the bay to where the island of Vinalhaven raises its rugged coastline through the blue haze of the morning mists, the mere mention of Maine stirs those poignant memories, so long dormant, and again our lives and those of the people with whom we grew up, pass before your eyes in an endless succession of happy events that was the childhood of so many of us.

Don't let Bill kid you. John and I will let you know when the best athlete in the Russell family arrives.

Francis S. Russell,
(the ninth child).

This And That

By K. S. F.

Neighbor! What a word for consideration. Good neighbors are an everlasting manna to a hungry soul. City folks are not apt to be aware of their neighbors, but country spaces give one comforting delight in neighboring with all in their section. Little things that make life of worth in the small towns or village life, church membership helps one to feel the power of good fellowship in neighbors. This war has made the world bad neighbors all too dramatically, and it will take time to sweeten hearts all over the earth.

Those new coined pennies are causing a lot of trouble. They are too apt to pass for ten-cent pieces and if you don't watch out you are apt to be seven cents short.

Bernard M. Baruch has high hope that bickering might be made to stop and more good common sense be brought out by heads of affairs. Captains of finance and business seem to be not too practical. Theories are their strong points with too little common understanding.

You're a Yankee crank;
You're a sap, Mister Jap,
Uncle Sam will surely spank.

Ladies who make gardens should not forget to plan the herb garden now, and see that it's ready for a real harvest next season.

Do you know what an ocarina is? The government has ordered 60,000 of them sent overseas each month to the soldiers. When a questionnaire was circulated, it became evident the boys' choice for musical instrument was this goose's head, sweet potato-looking thing that is easy to learn to bring out old tunes, familiar and dear to hearts. It gives soft and rather a whistle-like tune that soothes and quiets minds disturbed. Some call it sweet potato music.

Glass containers in pace of tin cans have released over 300,000 tons of steel and tin.

By this time there are more than 58,000 workers from Mexico, Jamaica and the Bahama Islands that are hard at it for agricultural employment in this country, just now getting in the crops and after wood to supply needs that come from shortage of coal and oil for warmth.

Not one person in ten, who knows that macadam, the name of a surfacing for roads, knows that macadam is also the name of the man who invented it—John L. Macadam.

To macadamize a road is to make a hard surface on it by depositing egg-size pieces of granite or other hard materials evenly in a bed of from 6 to 12 inches. It's the next best thing to paving and, considering that John Macadam began macadamizing roads as early as 1815, it was a real contribution to progress.

Macadam was a Scottish engineer and was appointed surveyor-general of all roads at Bristol, Scotland, in 1815. This gave him an opportunity to put into practice some ideas he had had for years and he spent $10,000 of his own money to show what could be done with his system. You can imagine how important his methods were when they prompted a Scotsman to spend $10,000 of his own money to demonstrate them?

The Back Home for Nurses was gay with flowers, sunshine and lovely ladies, primed for an afternoon's pleasure at cards. This social gathering, sponsored by the Rockland Garden Club, to obtain funds for the upkeep of the Hospital garden, was headed by Mrs. F. L. Carlsley, an energetic and most efficient chairman. Mrs. Ruth Ellingwood and Mrs. Kathleen S. Fuller as helpers. Also greatly augmented in the work by the club president, Mrs. Maude Blodgett.

Twenty-one tables were busy with the game from 2.30 to 4.30. Highest score at each table was awarded a Thrift Stamp, a little courtesy which met with the victory spirit of the hour. A dish of fruit-flavored candy was at each table.

Everyone approved of the thought to carry on the much enjoyed Hospital garden, for not only the improved looks of this part of the city, but the keen enjoyment of Hospital patients who sit out for healthful sunshine on the back porch.

Thanks are given to Mrs. Carlsley for her valiant effort and successful party and we will all take keen delight in having blossoms in that garden properly cared for during another season. K. S. F.

WITH THE EXTENSION AGENTS AND THE KNOX-LINCOLN FARM BUREAU

Agricultural Notes

Donald Johnson of Jefferson, one of the largest fruit growers in Lincoln County, reports a very good crop of McIntosh apples this year. Although he cut down many of his trees this past winter, due to crowding, he was able to harvest as large a crop as last year. Orchardists in the two counties are now harvesting a very good crop of fruit this year.

Poultry accounts are now being started by flock owners. These are going to be a great help in making out the income tax report in December. Farm accounts are much better than the poultry accounts, as they keep a complete record of all farm business. There is a small charge of 25 cents for the farm account. Both books are now available at the Extension Service office, Rockland.

A carload of Hereford heifers has been bought by farmers in the district through arrangements with the Department of Agriculture, Augusta. The car will arrive at Rockland about the first of November. County Agent R. C. Wentworth is assisting in pooling the order.

Plans are progressing for the Annual Farm Bureau meeting which is to be held at Waldoboro High School Friday, Oct. 29. Wallace Spear of North Nobleboro, president of the Farm Bureau, will have charge of the meeting. There will be speakers as well as exhibits.

4-H Club Notes

Five clubs have already re-organized for 1944 with a total enrollment of 40 members. They are: The Happy Homemakers, Alma, Bernell Jewett, leader; George's Valley Hustlers, Appleton, Karl Johnson, leader; Amateur Farmers, West Rockport, Mrs. Margaret Andrews, leader; Happy-Go-Luckies, Warren, Mrs. Luella Crockett, leader; and the George's Valley 4-H, Warren, Earle Moore, leader.

The following officers for 1944 were elected at a meeting of the George's Valley 4-H of Warren, Oct. 4: Carroll Martin, president; Warren Philbrook, vice president; Earle Moore, Jr., secretary; Earl Gammon, Jr., club reporter; Vaughan Philbrook, cheer leader; Charles Dolham and Russell Starrett, flag bearers; Harvel and Emerson Crockett, banner bearers. Two new members, Charles Dolham and Russell Starrett were taken into the club, making a total of ten members. Regular meetings will be held Thursday nights.

Officers for 1944 of the Amateur Farmers' 4-H in West Rockport were elected as follows: Henry Kontio, Jr., president; Ernest Douglas, vice president; Herbert Hurme, secretary; Walter Andrews, treasurer; Philip Carroll, color bearer. The next meeting will be held Oct. 21, at the home of their local leader, Mrs. Margaret Andrews.

A nationwide Fall Scrap Drive is being held to Nov. 15. Scrap collectors are asked to concentrate on heavy metal, such as obsolete farm and mill equipment and to avoid pots and pans, bedsteads, auto fenders and bodies, and similar light material. The only rubber scrap items now marketable are auto tires, tubes, and air hoses. More and more waste household fats are needed. Also needed are paper of all kinds, corrugated cardboard, kraft papers, newspapers and magazines; and rags of all kinds, especially white rags and woolens. No more silk or nylon stockings are being accepted. Taking part in this scrap drive is an excellent way for 4-H clubs to earn money and also to earn the 100 points given for a war activity toward the plaque score.

With The Homes

Kathryn Briwa, Extension Foods specialist, gave box lunch demonstrations in five rural schools, Oct. 6. Miss Briwa and Joyce Johnson, home demonstration agent, visited rural schools in South Somerville, Jefferson, Cooper's Mills, North Nobleboro and Alma. A total number of 127 pupils and five teachers listened to the demonstration and explanation of a well packed school lunch and a poorly packed school lunch.

Miss Briwa stressed the importance of milk, fruits and vegetables, particularly carrots and tomatoes. Sandwiches such as peanut butter, egg and cheese were compared to jam or jelly sandwiches. Simple desserts such as oatmeal or molasses cookies were suggested instead of rich desserts. Miss Briwa also spoke of the use of cod liver oil by children during the winter months.

PRUNING OUR LIVES

Thinking along lines of progress as I walked past men busy removing a large limb from a tree shattered by a recent wind storm, I watched the pruning of other branches, and thought what a lot of pruning humanity might have for improvement.

Almost all of us have superfluous and almost unnecessary branches, too, which could well be removed. Might it not be well to spend a little time occasionally, and take inventory of ourselves? I am much inclined to think, I personally, would find much to be eliminated, and a very great chance for nourishing heart and soul with that greatest of humanizer, fertility of heart in kindness and brotherly love.

The hurry and stress of doing our bit in this wartime rush leaves little time for meditation.

Watching the busy men and women doing all the excellent duties before them, never complaining, but up and at it, with uncounted hours of given labor; I find it hard to realize that these and others need to be included in the lack of vital spiritual discernment. Our basic need is a steadfast acknowledgment of God's divine power in our lives and accept it as the road to life and accomplishment of what is ours to enjoy. Service is the greatest and most potent word before us today. We are all soldiers of one kind or the other. We all know this. "A mighty fortress is our God, A bulwark never failing." Let us not fail Him.

Kathleen S. Fuller.

SERMONETTE

For What Are We Fighting?
III.

For the past three or four weeks this question has been before readers. Everyone should think it through. To say "It matters little what I think," is a defeatist attitude. Like every problem it is capable of two answers—the right one or a wrong one; but on it depends the fate of the world.

Like the alewife stream flowing in from the sea at Damascutta it may be decided by the flip of a coin. As the Prime Minister said at Harvard, "The allies won the First World War but lost the peace because a great nation stepped out of line—the United States." That was the truth.

Are Americans sure they will not repeat that ghastly mistake? So long as they stand firmly side by side, unmoved by jealousy, greed or lust for domination, more than the other; unmoved by financial advantage among the nations of the earth; by trade routes on land, by sea or in the air; they shall hold the great power for righteousness which God has placed within the reach of the English speaking peoples.

A law-ordered world is the distinguishing trait that marks Britain, her great family of Commonwealths, and the United States. On this solidarity they must stand to win.

Next, human freedom must be guaranteed—the right to live according to customs. "Liberty"—that will range upon Allies' side "Free France" when that nation shall again stand among the great nations of the Earth. With help, let her choose her leaders in the march to victory.

Russia more than any other of the allies has spilled the blood of her lost manhood to drive the tyrant of a hate inspired Germany from her soil. China, for all these long years, has suffered from a brutal attack, the like of which is unequalled in history by a barbarian nation that thought because they were the pants of the west they thereby became civilized men.

Americans work and fight for Peace. Ask your sons and daughters within reach of this column's circulation. Peace! and that comes from God through our Lord Jesus Christ. William A. Holman

"Doctrine of Atonement" is the subject of the lesson sermon that will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Oct. 17. The golden text is: "Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest; and how can we know the way? Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the Father, but by me." (John 14:5, 6). Among the citations from the Bible are the following passages: "For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the ashes of an heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctifieth to the purifying of the flesh; how much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God?" (Hebr. 9:13, 14).

At the Nazarene Church, Maverick Square, services Sunday will be as follows: Church school at 2 p. m., followed by the regular afternoon worship service at 3 o'clock, and Young People's meeting at 6:30, followed by the evangelistic service at 7:30 p. m. Rev. Curtis Stanley will preach at both afternoon and evening meetings and special music will be provided.

The Congregational morning service will be held at 10:45 when "God's Gifts" will be the subject of the sermon by Rev. Roy A. Welker. Strangers and visitors in the community are cordially welcomed. The church school holds its session at 10 a. m. with classes for children from the fourth grade through the High School age. The Primary Department meets at 10:45 a. m. with classes for the Nursery, Beginners, and Primary ages. A cordial welcome will be extended to children who may not yet have chosen a church school for the year. The Comrades of the Way meet in their Chapter room at 6:30 p. m.

"Then Jesus Came" will be the text of the sermon by Rev. Charles A. Marsteller at the Littlefield Memorial Baptist Church Sunday at 10:30. Special music will be provided. Sunday school follows at 11:45 with classes for all ages. Young People's Meeting comes at 6 o'clock with Mrs. Marsteller as leader. The pastor will speak at the 7:15 service on the subject "Remember," with special music included. The Lincoln Baptist Association meets all day Tuesday at this church. The Ladies' Missionary Society meets with Mrs. Harry Chase on Brewster street Thursday afternoon.

At the First Baptist Church Rev. J. Charles MacDonald will preach in the 10:30 service on the subject "Pray Without Ceasing." The Church School will be held from 12 to 1 with Bible classes for those of all ages. The Young People's Bible Class, taught by Miss Cook, will meet in the church parlor at 5. At 6 the Christian Endeavor Society will have a service of inspiration for all young people. The evening service, which opens at 7:15, will be led by the men of the Ingleham Bible Class. Mr. MacDonald will speak on "A Fearful Man Who Made Good." Following the evening service all young people are invited to a time of singing and fellowship in the vestry.

Recently the eighth period Cicero class, accompanied by Mrs. Diana Pitts, Latin teacher, saw "Watch on the Rhine" at Strand Theatre. After seeing it, the class realized that there are freedom-loving men fighting a fascist menace today as bravely as did the loyal men of Rome in the days of Cicero, nearly 2000 years ago. Students attending the show were Melvina McCaslin, Alice Rogers, Lois Benner, Virginia Farrell, Joanne Horne, Sandra Hallowell, Elaine Glendenning, Jane Abbott and Joan Abbott.

A rally was held Monday afternoon for the annual magazine subscription contest to give the present standings of the two teams, Army and Navy, and to urge pupils to sell more subscriptions before the closing date, Oct. 14. Pep talks were given by Ralvan Welker, Lincoln McRae, Mr. Smith and Mr. Bowen. The goal is $1800 worth of subscriptions for the school. Sales for Army to date total $587.25; for Navy, $532.75.

CUSHING

Citizens here may feel proud of the creditable showing made in the bond drive. The quota was $18,000. A total of $30,071.25 was bought, over the top 70 percent.

Worldly cures for loneliness do not go deep enough to satisfy. There must be an awareness of a higher power, that fellowships with both heart and soul. Let us all hoped we have learned much from the bitter trials of these past few years. We would be lost indeed without that staunch lifeline, hope. Let us all get our lives ordered into the first needs, and that is courageous hope. Be not stoical about it, but bring hope to our aid, and rise to meet the needs with the help the church is willing and waiting to give.

If the church could only stop waiting, but resolve to show the world the better paths in a more friendly manner, and win for the "God of our help in ages past." Mutual confidence, they would have less difficult problems, I predict. Our vital needs should destroy prejudices, and make us realize we can organize a church that will not be defeated. Order in a world of disorder. This is the first step needed to win Christian fellowship. Kathleen S. Fuller

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passage with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Educational Club

Hears Several Interesting Talkers At Its Picnic Session

The Woman's Educational Club met with Mrs. Humphrey and Mrs. Kallach at Glen Cove Friday. A goodly number enjoyed the fine program and the wonderful hospitality of the hostesses. The excellent supper should be given special mention. James Moore, regional manager of pictures for the Press Herald spoke briefly on his work. He said he had taken up photography as a hobby in his High School days. His father and brothers had all been newspaper men so after his graduation he fell in line.

He showed groups of pictures on the human drama of life, murders, bathing beauties, etc., all of which proved intensely interesting to the club. As a climax he took pictures of the group.

Mrs. Dyer gave a very fine paper on "Early English Poetry." She said the poetry dated back to a very early age when all else was in primitive stages and some of the finest in literature was born. Before the days of the Viking and lacking means of recording the Scorp had sung his ballads and epic poems, often making his own improvisations. However, no Scorp had dared to deviate from the melancholy or plaintive theme in his style. Sadness and despair ran like a major chord in this poetry.

Mrs. Dyer's daughter, who is stationed in Philadelphia, spoke extemporaneously on service women's training, and the part these women are taking in the crisis of our time. She answered questions covering her branch of the service.

Mrs. Pitts gave a truly delightful travelogue of places she had visited in the theatre of the war area—told in an inimitable manner with so much naive humor that was a delight to her audience. She took us through the precarious crossing of the Alps into Switzerland during a downpour, and how funny they were in signaling for a taxi in French and Spanish, but unable to make the drivers understand. They finally secured a wonderful one-horse shay to take them to their hotel, where they lingered long in paying the driver to display "their elegance to their friends."

Milan impressed them as a rather dirty city—but here was the famous cathedral with its lacy minarets and stained windows above the priceless chancel. Naples was lovely as a dream and it was very difficult to picture the devastation that is rampant today. Mt. Vesuvius could be seen with its spiral of smoke during the day, and at night the glow of the subterranean fires were plainly seen. Pompeii is slowly being excavated; the Italian government appropriates about $2500 each year for this purpose.

In the Bay of Naples lies the Isle of Capri and the ruins of the palace of the Emperor Tiberius who spent the last years of his life here. On a perfect morning the party set out to visit the Grotto of the Nymphs, a cave in the cliffs where dozens of boats may be accommodated at the same time. The opening, however is very small, and one has to lie prone as they enter. Sometimes if the sea is so rough that parties have been marooned here for days.

Rome, the "Eternal City" was the next place to grip their attention. While visiting the museums of art she stopped to speak to a friend and became separated from her party and saw a great deal more, by taking a small Italian boy as her guide, entering the Forum of Trajan and was so thrilled to walk on the very stones where Anthony, Julius Caesar, Brutus and Cicero had trod.

They were all thrilled with Venice's canals, gondolas, gondoliers as they glided under the Bridge of Sighs. At Genoa, the birthplace of Columbus, they stood before the magnificent bust erected to his memory. Italy, a land of culture and beauty in music, art, rhetoric and its priceless contribution to the world is so inconsistent with the Mussolini regime.

Shelley was drowned, and according to the laws of Tuscany his body must be burned, so his friend, Lord Byron, had the heart of Shelley together with his ashes placed in the Protestant burying ground at Rome. On the stone is the inscription in Latin, "O Heart of Hearts." The guide remarked: "You will probably never see a cemetery like this—there is only one in the world like it, that one is in New Orleans." It seems this is Miss Pitts home town.

Dr. Howard Page spoke extemporaneously on the Hospital Ship Eleanor which goes to the assistance of those who need hospitalization or medical treatment not available at home. He said he understood that the chartering of those privately owned boats was to be discontinued by the Navy Department very soon. He said his profession was chiropractic surgery and he had studied in 41 different branches of medicine and then adopted what he thought the best.

Wilbur Senter showed three reels of pictures, most of which he had taken himself—United States at war, the skating tournament at Boston Garden, some beautiful sketches of rock gardens on Dodge's Mt. and pictures of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Bernice Freeman, who has a very unusual collection of antique buttons, 1480 mounted, many more not mounted, kindly sent the mounted collection to the club to see. For this we are very grateful and extend our thanks at this time. Mrs. Freeman was unable to be present at the meeting.
